

A TANKER TRICK.—Captain Read, of the New London, in his account of the capture of the vessels, gives rather an amusing incident. While in pursuit of the steamer that eventually escaped, two schooners bore in sight. One was a small thing, laden with cordwood, and he paid no attention to it. The larger one, supposing from this that the steamer was a Confederate, quietly pursued her course, until very suddenly brought up all standing by a gun from the New London. When the latter ran alongside, the rebel Captain was very profuse with curses, and declared "it was Another STRATEGIC COKE.—CYTUS W. Field, of Atlantic Telegraph fame, has addressed a letter to Gen. McClellan, recommending the laying of a submarine telegraphic cable around the Southern coast, to connect our forts and military stations on the Atlantic seaboard.

port News, Fortrose Monroe, Hasteras, Port Royal, Hilton Head, Tybee Island, Fernandina, Cedar Keys, Port Picken, Ship Island, and Galveston, Texas.

Gen. McClellan fully concurs, and earnestly urges that the plan be adopted by the Government, and that Mr. Field be authorized to have it carried into execution.

RETIRED.—Mr. Cummings, it is stated, has dissolved his connection with the N. Y. World, and is about to visit Europe to improve his impaired health—and we rather

POOR "LITTLE SING."—The following advertisement from the London Times, will enlist the sympathies of all its readers in the unhappiness of "Little Sing." What must have been the emotions of the "Dear Old Monster," as his eye fell upon it—

DEAR OLD MONSTER.—Little Sing is very unhappy. Horse is well.

A WAGGISH CAPTAIN.—The Captain of the American ship Montmorency, which was harried by the Sumpter, ransomed his vessel by giving a bond for $20,000, "payable to the President of the Southern Confederacy, thirty days after peace is declared." It reminds us of the traveler, stopped by a highwayman, who told the thief he had no money, but would give him

CHEAP LIVING.—The Muscatine Journal gives the following price list of provisions in that city: Tenderloins, four cents; sausage meat, three cents; shoulders, three cents; ribs, with meat on, three cents.

THE Some one speaks of November and December as being rightly named, since they are indeed the embers of the dying year.

THE Rebels talk of widening Cumberland Gap so that Humphrey Marshall can conveniently get through it.
